

RESOURCES

Resource Name	Resource Link	Description
Federal Student Aid	studentaid.ed.gov	U.S. Department of Education's main website for borrowers and includes detailed information about repayment options.
Federal Student Aid, StudentLoans.gov	studentloans.gov	U.S. Department of Education's site to complete applications for student loan consolidation or IBR/Pay As You Earn/ICR repayment plans.
National Student Loan Data System	nslds.ed.gov	U.S. Department of Education's central database, National Student Loan Data System, that provides consolidated access to student loans and grants. Information is received from schools, guaranty agencies, and servicers.
Federal Student Aid Pin	pin.ed.gov	Federal Student Aid's PIN Web site where you can apply, access, change, disable, or activate your PIN. Your PIN serves as your electronic signature and provides access to your personal records.
Federal Student Aid Ombudsman Group	https://studentaid.ed.gov/repay-loans/disputes/prepare	Federal Student Aid Ombudsman group site provides steps to take if you're in a dispute about your federal student loan. Contacting the Ombudsman Group should be a last resort after all steps outlined on the site have been taken.
NCLC Student Loan Borrower Assistance	studentloanborrowerassistance.org	National Consumer Law Center's resource site for student loan borrowers.
Mapping Your Future	mappingyourfuture.org	Mapping Your Future site provides resources for college planning, money management and career exploration for borrowers, teachers, families, and schools. Helping students, families, and schools.
Money Management International	moneymanagement.org	Money Management International site provides access to services, financial education, and resources to improve your finances and improve your life.